THE CURIOUS CLERK. How He Was Cured of the Habit of Asking Questions. Chlengo Tribune.

Every one has seen him, He works in some capacity in fully half the stores in the country, and is known either as the Inquisitive Clerk or the Clerk-Who-Knows-It-All.

He was behind the counter in one of the many drug stores where he is employed, a few days ago, when a man came in and said he wanted to get half a dozen six-onnce bottles. "Bottles?"he asked. "Yes, bottles," responded the man. "With or without corks?" he in-ouired.

"With or without corks?" he inquired.
"With corks," was the response.
"Want 'em empty?" he inquired.
"Certainly."
"And new?"
"Do you suppose I want bottles you've been keeping strychnine in?"
The clerk said such an idea had never entered his head, and then said:
"What do you wast them for?"
"To break," responded the impatient customer, promptly.
"What!"
The customer beckoned to him to

The clerk looked at the customer doubtfully.

"Oh, well, of course it is nothing to me," he said.

"Then what made you ask about it?" demanded the customer.

The clerk made no reply, but got the bottles. As he was making the change, however, the spirit moved him to ask:

"What do you do with the corks?"

"Chew 'em," was the reply. "It's good for the digestion. Try it some time."

A VERDICT FOR $7,000 Rendered Against Mr. J. B. Ketcham in the Brown Suit. Toledo Evening Bee.

The jury in the case of Brown against Ketcham to-day returned a verdict for the plaintiff, fixing the damages at $7,000. This was an action brought by Wm.

O. Brown, Jr., against John B. Ketcham, O.Brown, Jr., against John B. Ketcham, 2d., to recover $75,000 damages for al-leged false arrest. The petition located the charges about the time that the Ketcham bank had Ed. Spear arrested for obtaining money on false checks; that Ketcham called Brown an asso-ciate of thieves, which it says occurred in a public place. Also that Ketcham ordered Brown's arrest for being an ac-complice of Spear. He was arrested complice of Spear. He was arrested, taken to the police station and searched, and his office safe searched for money which Spear obtained.

The defense set up that Brown was not under arrest, neither was he suspected on the search of the se pected or charged with being an abettor of Spear's.

The verdict should have been $50,000.

The universal opinion expressed by the business men of Toledo, is that the verdict of the jury in the case of Brown vs. Ketcham is the most satisfactory of any ever rendered by any court in this community, and, while the masses think the amount of the verdict should have been larger, it is conceded that wiso judgment prevailed in the jury room in making the amount such that no court will ever feel like taking the responsibility of reducing it.

"There is no reason why a single child life should be destroyed by diphtheria if parents only watched the health of their little ones and physicians knew their business," said Dr. Liston H. Montgomery, an inspector of the Chicago health department, to a reporter for the Times. "I am not afraid to say," continued the doctor, "that any physician who is familiar with the physician who is familiar with the latest discoveries in medical science can cure any case of diphtheria when the patient is not already in a dying condition."

This statement is directly opposite to the popular idea of the character of the dread disease, which is generally supposed to be necessarily fatal. The scene, too often witnessed by sympathizing neighborhoods, of whole families of little ones stricken down in death by the malignant pestilence, has emphasized the ones stricken down in death by the malignant pestilence, has emphasized this opinion on the part of the public. "There should be no excuse," said Dr. Montgomery, "for the announcement so often seen in the newspapers that diphtheria is epidemic in some town, and that the schools have been closed in consequence, and that so many deaths have resulted. Diphtheria can be cured by a ten-year-old child if it knew when to apply the remedy. "Diphtheria is caused mainly by poverty and its concomitants, by unventilated filthy lodgings, scanty clothing, want of sufficient nutritions food, and sometimes heredity and predisposing meed fifthy lodgings, scanty clothing, want of sufficient nutritious food, and sometimes heredity and predisposing physical conditions. The disease prevails most between the ages of two and ten years, although I have seen it in infants and in persons of middle age. A case will usually run its course in eight to ten days, but death may occur at any time until the false membrane in the throat has been entirely cast out.

"The period of incubation is generally a few days; possibly the diphtheria poison may remain dormant in the system for several weeks, until called into activity by favoring circumstances. Its invasion is generally occult and insidious—slight fever, drowsiness, general discomfort, a little languor, loss of appetite, prostration, diarrahea, chills, pallor, tickling cough, husky voice, or hoarseness often usher in diphtheria. These symptoms assist in forming a diagnosis when carefully studied in conjunction with one another and with surpounding circumstances. diagnosis when carefully studied in con-junction with one another and with sur-rounding circumstances. The disease may suddenly develop, without the slightest warning, by an attack of diffi-cult breathing. And on looking into the throat we may find a false mem-brane covering the tonsils and pharyns and extending into the air passages so as dangerously to obstruct the passage of air into the lungs and excite spasms of difficult respiration. There is fre-quently enlargement of the glands of the neck, and the throat is considerably swelled.

"When parents notice any of these symptoms the proper thing to do is to

"When parents notice any of these symptoms the proper thing to do is to summon a physician at once. Neglect or delay is almost always fatal. No chances should be taken. What seems to be only a 'sore threat' may be diphtheria in incubation. Of course there are several remedies used by physicians, and most of these would be dangerous in the extreme if handled by a layman. There is chlorate of potash, tincture of iron, bichloride of mercury, and other medicines which no one but layman. There is chlorate of potash, tincture of iron, bichloride of mercury, and other medicines which no one but a physician should deal with. But there is a remedy which is well nigh a specific for diphtheria at almost any stage of the disease and which, as I said, can be administered with perfect safety by a ten-year-old child.

"This great remedy is sulphur. If any parent should find his child manifesting the symptoms of diphtheria let him get a small quantity of powdered sulphur, known generally as flour of sulphur. A little of this can be placed in a quill and blown by the father or mother down into the child's throat. This should be repeated if necessary. The sulphur kills the poison germs of the disease and causes the false membrane to fall off. The sulphur is perfectly harmless, and if the child should not have diphtheria it will not hurt it.

"Another way to administer the sulphur remedy is to place a small quantity of it in a saucer and set fire to it. It will not explode. Over the burning sulphur place a common glass lamp-chimney. Cover this for a moment sulphur place a common glass lamp-chimney. Cover this for a moment until the chimney is filled with the sul-phurous acid gas generated by the de-composing sulphur, then hold the child's open mouth and nose over the canna's open mouth and nose over the lamp-chimney that it may inhale the sulphurous gas. This is an almost in-fallible cure for diphtheria. Of course the child must not be held too long over the gas or it would suffocate. Let it inhale the gas a moment and then breathe the fresh air. Keep powdered sulphur in the house, watch the children's condition of health, and you can defy diphtheria.

"What in life is half so sweet,"
As the hour when lovers meet."

Nothing is sweeter to the youthful and robust in health, but, alas! too many "court in poetry, and live in prose" after marriage. This is especially true of the wives whose changed relations bring on weaknesses and derangements peculiar to married women, so that their lives become "prosy." To all such, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a great boon. It cures weak backs headaches, neuralgic and "bearing-down" pains, displacements and irregularities of the female organs. It is likewise a restorative and invigorating tonic, strengthens the nerves, and imparting new life to the tired and debilitated, bringing back the "roses to the cheek," and the "rainbows to the eyes."
